

	WED 8/1 Comradeship and communication skills	THU 8/2 Identities and organising	FRI 8/3 Solidarity, international campaigns	SAT 8/4 Practical skills	SUN 8/5 Back to everyday routine
9-10		Breakfast and morning meeting	Breakfast and morning meeting	Breakfast and morning meeting	Breakfast and morning meeting
10-12.30		Contemplative workshop: Revolution Is More Than a Word: 23 Theses on Anarchism by Gabriel Kuhn	Eco-resistance and revolution: Reflections on recent movements	Workshops to improve communication: Websites, videos, announcements and writing	Everyday life, strength, autonomy: Activist culture that gives more than it takes, what is it like?
12.30 - 13.30	13.00 Welcoming and lunch	Lunch	Lunch	Lunch	Lunch
13.30 - 15.30	Where are we at with anarchism(s)? Group introductions. What is your action a response to? Discussion on dreams and challenges	Local struggles and resistance: Puhos, Pispala, Fiskars. Introductions and reflection from a revolutionary perspective	Introduction and reflection: Anti-fascism and anarchism	Sustainable resistance and various workshops for newbies and veterans	Evaluation
15.30 -16	Afternoon coffee	Afternoon coffee	Afternoon coffee	Afternoon coffee	Afternoon coffee
16-18	How to create a safe and inspiring camp? Smooth conversations and meetings 17.00 Facilitation workshop	On the forms and goals of organising: Formal organisations: ARNA, Alusta and Varis	17- 19.00 The forms and the significance of solidarity: The Kurdish movement, repression in Russia	More practical workshops	Cleaning
18-19	Dinner	Dinner	..Conversation continues	Dinner	Cleaning

EVENING	Getting to know each other	Evening workshop: Anti-authoritarian parenting Sauna, videos, hanging out	Dinner at 19.00 Evening workshop: Inhabit Sauna, videos, hanging out	Party and live music	Cleaning
---------	----------------------------	--	---	-----------------------------	----------

How to create a safe and inspiring camp?

The goal is to create a basis for a camp where everyone can feel as free as possible to express their views. With a good atmosphere, it's possible to safely consider viewpoints that differ from one's own. Creative thinking requires a safe space where you are allowed to be silly and creativity in thinking is what is needed in this world right now.

Contemplative workshop: Revolution Is More Than a Word - 23 Theses on Anarchism by Gabriel Kuhn

Discussion based on Gabriel Kuhn's Revolution Is More Than A Word - 23 Theses on Anarchism which will be read ahead of time. We've chosen a startling text because we are sure that it won't leave anyone cold. The theses will be discussed critically (and self-critically) in small groups. The important thing isn't what Kuhn wrote but where we end up in our conversations.

Local struggles

What kind of battles have organised inhabitants fought to influence their own living environments? Can an anti-authoritarian achieve anything significant and revolutionary in these struggles? Why join in and how? Pispala, Puhos and Fiskars serve as examples.

On the forms and and goals of organising

Let's organise! All action begins with some form of organising. The goal is to consider the pros and cons of different types of organising based on introductions to them. The perspective of (at least) the formally organised ARNA, Alusta and Varis will be presented.

Eco-resistance and revolution

Environmental struggles from an anti-authoritarian and revolutionary perspective. Resource and land conflicts are easy to connect to the demands of capitalism and to see as offences against the autonomy of the local communities. The eco-crisis is clearly a result of growth economics. But how can opposing a mine or an airport be seen as action to promote a free society? This will be clarified through introductions to different example Cases.

Anti-fascism and the Anarchist Movement

In the early 2010's Finnish fascists started organising more purposefully and attacking anarchists and many other groups. The response to the violence from the far right was to take the need for self-defence seriously, and to start doing anti-fascist organising. The most radical front line of the general anti-fascist movement has been composed of anarchists, but what has been the relationship between the anarchist movement and anti-fascism? How have anarchists participated in the anti-fascist movement, and how has this influenced the goals of the anarchist movement itself? In this presentation we reflect on the relationship between anti-fascism and the anarchist movement in the current decade, based on practical examples and personal experience.

Solidarity and international struggles

(In English, translated from English/Russian into Finnish)

We will hear inspiring news about progressing struggles but especially about the repression that the resistance faces. What is the meaning of solidarity? What is revolutionary solidarity? What's central to solidarity work? Can it go wrong? Introductions by the Kurdish movement and Russians.

Saturday

More details on the workshops during the camp. The aim is to assess and discuss various kinds of necessary skills and knowledge based on needs: from communication skills to organising actions and from demonstrating to legal knowledge. Includes working in small groups and physical exercises.

Everyday life, strength, autonomy

The aim of the workshop is to discuss, through concrete examples, projects that attempt to respond to one or more of the aforementioned questions. The workshop begins with short introductions after which we move on to discussion. The discussion proceeds according to the interests of the participants but the tentative purpose is to share the reasoning behind the presented projects, spread practices that have been found useful and consider the challenges that have come up.